
degree teaching Tutors needed for English, Math, maybe some other subjects

Posted by Becky T - 2009/09/09 07:57

Hi guys, Here's a possible part-time opportunity. My mom works there and passed it on to me. The ad says that tutors have to have a masters degree, but my mom doesn't have one, and she works there, so I know that's not true. PART-TIME TUTOR IN THE ACADEMIC CENTER FOR ENRICHMENT (A.C.E.) Date Posted: August 10th, 2009 Fisher College is seeking qualified individuals to tutor students in English and math, as well as work with students on organizational and time management skills. Hours are available both during the day and in the evening.

RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Tutor students on a one-on-one basis
- Review written materials and help organize papers, essays, etc.
- Suggest appropriate study strategies, and assist students with organizational skills, and time management
- Make referrals when appropriate,
- Uphold the standards of tutoring outlined by the National Tutoring Association

REQUIREMENTS:

- Masters degree
- Experience teaching at the college level, or tutoring students on a one-on-one basis in a college setting
- Strong organizational and interpersonal skills
- Ability to assist students on the computer using several different software applications
- Experience working with at-risk students and/or developmental curriculum preferred

Please forward cover letter and CV/resume by email only to: Liya Escalera, Director of Academic Outreach Programs, at lescal...@fisher.edu Hope everyone is doing well! -Becky

=====